Supreme Court Upholds Negro Vote Safeguard

TRIAL JUDGE — Judge Frank J. Murray (above) announced yesterday that the William Van Rie first degree murder case will go to an all-male jury at Boston today. He called the state's evidence in the strange death of Lynn Kauffman as "wholly circumstantial." Murray recessed court in mid-afternoon to give both sides time to prepare their closing arguments. Lloyd Supports Bonn Plan For Outside Bases

LONDON (AP) — Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd Monday backed Bonn's desire for military facilities outside West German territory, provided such installations are on NATO soil.

He sought in the House of Commons to calm a storm which blew up in Britain last week after the disclosure that West Germany had tried to establish bases in Spain, not a member of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

Lloyd disagreed sharply with a Laborite charge that a West German company is producing guided missiles at a steel factory in Bilbao, Spain. He said the steel factory "has nothing to do with arms production."

Lloyd repeated that he thought it unwise for the West Germans to go outside NATO for military facilities. But he welcomed Chancellor Konrad Adenauer's assurances that the matter would be pursued only in agreement with the North Atlantic Council.

Lloyd said he had been assured by the West German and Spanish governments that there was no truth in reports that the Germans planned to set up a missile establishment in Bilbao.

Lloyd expressed sympathy for West Germany's need for outside training facilities.

"The average width of the Federal Republic is 160 miles," he pointed out. "A modern fighter plane covers that distance in from 10 to 15 minutes. Recently a pilot who was not properly trained came down in Czechoslovakia. One could think of the dangers which could arise from that sort of thing."

No Fallout Detected

LONDON (AP) — Derek Walker-Smith, the British minister of health, told the House of Commons Monday no radioactive fallout attributable to the French atomic test Feb. 13 in the Sahara had been detected in Britain.

Key Provisions Of 1957 Rights Act Sustained

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court Monday upheld a key part of the 1957 Civil Rights Act. It also ordered 1,377 Louisiana Negroes restored to that state's voting rolls. Both decisions were unanimous.

In a split decision, the court sustained the right of states to discharge employees who refuse to answer questions touching on security.

The court reversed a finding by U.S. Dist. Judge T. Hoyt Davis at Macon, Ga., that sections of the 1957 act aimed at protecting voting rights of Negroes were unconstitutional.

Then, on the basis of its findings in the Georgia case, the court held that 1,377 Negro voters had been illegally purged from the rolls in Louisiana's Washington Parish. The court ordered them restored.

This first Supreme Court test of the vital voting provisions of the Civil Rights Act resulted in a federal government victory which presumably will permit the Negroes to vote in Louisiana's April 19 to state election.

The decisions coincided with the opening in the Senate of a drive to break a Southern filibuster and pass a new civil rights law aimed at helping Negroes vote.

The ruling on the right of states to discharge employees who refuse to answer questions dealing with security came in the case of two employees of Los Angeles County, Calif. They were discharged after refusing to answer questions in appearances before the House Committee on Un-American Activities.

Chief Justice Earl Warren disqualified himself in this opinion because of his California background. The other justices split 4-4 on the discharge of Thomas W. Nelson, which had the effect of upholding his dismissal. In the case of Arthur Globe, the discharge was sustained by a 5-3 vote.

Russ Believed To Have A-Sub

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Soviet Union is believed to have atomic submarines as part of its big underwater fleet.

The Kremlin is reported to be withholding the news of this until enough of the long-range subs are built to create a big splash when it is disclosed.

Persons who reported this Monday said the Soviets have cut down production of conventional submarines in order to concentrate on nuclear, missile-firing subs.

The number of atomic submarines the Soviets may have was not disclosed. But it was pointed out that the nuclear reactors powering the Soviet icebreaker "Lenin" could be adapted to underwater craft.

The Soviet's reluctance to talk about its atomic submarine developments is believed to be influenced by the knowledge they are far behind the United States in this naval field.

The U.S. Navy already has 10 atomic submarines in commission.

Purvis, Whose FBI Team Slew Dillinger, Kills Self

FLORENCE, S.C. (AP) — Mild-mannered Melvin Purvis, whose FBI team shot down John Dillinger and Pretty Boy Floyd in bloody gangster cleanups of the 1930s, died by his own hand Monday.

Purvis, 56, who had left the FBI in 1935 to follow careers in law and broadcasting, shot himself with a chrome-plated .45 caliber automatic in his home here. A physician said he had been depressed and in poor health recently. Acquaintances said Purvis often carried a weapon.

Coroner William T. Eaddy said a self-inflicted shot through the jaw brought death shortly before noon in the upstairs hallway of his home. His wife, Rosanne, ran from the garden when a shot rang out and found the body.

Twenty-five years ago, Purvis, a graduate of the law university of South Carolina, headed a picked team of FBI agents as agent-in-charge of the bureau's Chicago office.

He led teams that killed Dillinger and Floyd during the notorious gangland era. Purvis was instrumental in capturing Verne Sankey, also a No. 1 public enemy in his heyday. Sankey, taken in a Chicago barber shop, committed suicide after his capture.

ENDS LIFE — Melvin Purvis (above), former FBI agent who led team which shot down the notorious John Dillinger in the 1930s, was found dead of self-inflicted gun wounds in his Florence, N. C., home yesterday. Purvis was president of the Florence Broadcasting Co. (Story at bottom of page.)

Racial Sitdown Trials Started; Trio Fined $160

By United Press International
Three student participants in sitdown protests against lunch counter segregation were fined a total of $160 Monday at Nashville, Tenn., where thousands of Negroes sang church hymns and the National Anthem outside the city courtroom.

The two Negroes and a white youth were the first of 80 such cases to be heard individually by Judge John Harris who threatened to slap a contempt of court fine on a Negro attorney who charged the cases were "pre-judged."

Harris had dismissed loitering charges against the defendants and permitted the warrants to be amended to include disorderly conduct charges.

While the trials were going on more than 700 students of the Alabama State College for Negroes met at Montgomery, Ala., and pledged to resign from school if any student is expelled for participating in the sitdown protests.

In Nashville, John Ira Nye, 20-year-old white Fisk University student, was fined $50 for refusing an order to leave a dime store lunch counter. He received the maximum disorderly conduct fine.

Albert Keith Guy, of Chicago, 26-year-old Negro student from Fisk University, was fined $10 for disorderly conduct. Police said Guy created disorder by walking into the police station and insisting he be arrested so he could be with student friends already in jail.

Hardy Woodward Hunter, 22, Negro from Tennessee A&I University, was fined $50 each for disorderly conduct and resisting arrest.

Hunter said a white youth harassed him while he was sitting at a lunch counter and then pulled him from his counter stool and kicked him. Police said they grabbed both Hunter and the white youth, there was a struggle and the white youth got away and Hunter was jailed.

The court hearings will resume Tuesday at 9 a.m.

Police from all parts of Nashville were called to help handle the 3,000 Negroes. The courtroom was cleared and officials used loudspeakers to call the cases.

The sources said the blast, visible from the Finnish side of the border, was strong enough to be detected by seismographs throughout Finland.

Finnish woodcutters reported they saw a blinding flash and heard an explosion about midday on Feb. 2, at a point east of the Finnish border and just north of the Arctic Circle.

Reliable sources said it was possible the explosion occurred in an ammunition dump or in a missile stockpile in a Russian military complex built up around Alakurtti, just east of the Finnish border.

The Rev. Martin Luther King Jr. surrendered Monday on a perjury charge accusing him of making false state income tax returns. He was released on $4,000 bond.

The Negro minister, now a resident of Atlanta, flew here from Los Angeles where he has been on a speaking tour.

King, leader of the Montgomery bus boycott and widely known for his fight against segregation, is charged with failure to report about $27,000 in earnings when he filed his state income tax returns for 1956 and 1958.

Rules Manual Helps Rights Bill Foes To Minor Victory

Ruling To Help Filibusterers Save Voices

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Richard B. Russell (D - Ga.), pulled out the rule book Monday and won a minor round as the Senate moved slowly into marathon civil rights sessions.

As captain of an 18-member Southern band of opponents, Russell literally waved the rules manual at his colleagues. He was making a parliamentary demand aimed at easing the burden on the Southerners' voices, likely to become hoarse with filibustering.

Vice President Richard M. Nixon, presiding at the time, held Russell was right in his contention that Senate clerks must read all civil rights amendments offered to a pending unrelated House-passed bill.

This amounted to a plain threat by the Southerners to wheel out some long amendments and let the clerks use up time reading them while the filibusterers got their second wind.

McClellan Enters Fray
Then Sen. John L. McClellan (D-Ark.), moved into the parliamentary fray. He demanded from Nixon a ruling on whether he could offer proposed amendments without obtaining unanimous consent.

If he couldn't McClellan stormed that he would make a motion and force the Senate to vote on his right to act.

Sen. Frank Carlson (R - Kan.), who was presiding this time, held that McClellan didn't need unanimous consent.

Sen. Jacob K. Javits (R-N.Y.), a civil rights advocate, popped up to observe that any kind of lengthy amendment could be offered. He said someone might even wrap up sections of the Bible and submit them.

Previously Sen. Prescott Bush (R-Conn.), another who spelled Nixon in the presiding officer's chair, had held that if the Senate should vote later to limit debate, only those amendments presented to it before that vote could be considered in passing a measure.

The Senate must vote on limiting debate on the second day after a petition signed by 16 members is filed. McClellan wanted to know what would happen if the clerks couldn't finish reading all of the proposed amendments before the voting deadline, one hour after the Senate convened on the second day.

This stumped Sen. Norris Cotton (R-N.H.), who had taken over the presiding officer's chair and Nixon was summoned.

Nixon also found that was a tough one. He said he would have to hunt up some precedents and reserved a ruling until later.

Thus in its first attempt since 1959 to work continuously around the clock, the Senate bumped immediately into the Southerners' intimate knowledge of its intricate rules.

Tremendous Blast Rocks Soviet Base

HELSINKI, Finland (UPI) — A tremendous explosion, possibly in a Soviet missile stockpile, rocked a Russian military base near the Finnish border early this month, reliable sources said here Monday.

The sources said the blast, visible from the Finnish side of the border, was strong enough to be detected by seismographs throughout Finland.

Finnish woodcutters reported they saw a blinding flash and heard an explosion about midday on Feb. 2, at a point east of the Finnish border and just north of the Arctic Circle.

Miss Asher said Chessman did fail.

Chessman said last week that he was drafting a new letter to Brown, and he hinted that he would make suggestions to remove himself from the debate in the Legislature over the abolition of capital punishment.

Brown himself delayed the death penalty fight in the Legislature Monday while he met with liberal leaders to map strategy.

As he did this, the temporary president of the state Senate, Democrat Hugh M. Burns, predicted that Brown's drive to abolish the death penalty and free Caryl Chessman and others would fail.

Red Boss Ties Berlin Warning To Summit Talks

JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP) — Nikita Khrushchev warned Monday the May summit meeting must bring agreement on West Berlin's status or he will sign a separate treaty with Communist East Germany.

And in that event, the Soviet Premier said, West Berlin—where the Western Big Three have garrisons — would come under authority of the East Germans "because West Berlin stands on territory belonging to the Communist German Democratic Republic."

But at a free-wheeling news conference near the end of his Indonesian visit, Khrushchev vowed to work for a successful conclusion at the Paris summit.

"I do believe in the good intentions of President Eisenhower, Prime Minister Macmillan and President Charles de Gaulle," he declared.

Khrushchev often has threatened to sign a separate peace treaty with East Germany. But this was the first time he had tied the threat to the Paris summit meeting.

The Premier made the remark in answering a question about reports that he will insist at the summit that the Western powers leave Berlin regardless of any concessions they may offer to Soviet views on disarmament.

Khrushchev replied this was really two questions because disarmament involved the question of peace for the world while Berlin was "a question of doing away with the vestiges of World War II, a question whose solution has been dragged out for 15 years."

The peril of a Soviet-East German treaty to the Allied position in Berlin is that the East Germans would take over control of the supply lines to the city—110 miles behind the Iron Curtain. The three Western powers refuse to recognize the East German regime.

Hopeful Talks Ease Tension, Chileans Told

Santiago Throgs Give Eisenhower Rousing Welcome

SANTIAGO, Chile (UPI) — President Eisenhower revealed Monday night that one of the main purposes of his current tour was to consult with Latin American leaders on a summit conference he hoped would help end "the mad race for destructive power."

Eisenhower, deeply moved by the flower and confetti welcome accorded him by 400,000 cheering Chileans who smothered Communist attempts to spoil his reception, told a dinner audience Monday night that "you, as much as we, have a vital stake in all that goes on in global affairs."

In a speech at a dinner given at the presidential palace he said he was "too realistic to expect miracles" from the forthcoming summit conference with Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev in Paris. He added, however, that there was hope "we may reach some agreements which will lessen the tensions that divide and vex the world."

The President looked refreshed and relaxed when he arrived here. He thanked Chilean President Jorge Alessandri Rodriguez for the welcome, saying, "the affection for my people that I saw along the street is reciprocated from the bottom of my heart."

Castro Photo Torn Down
Just before Eisenhower rode down flag-draped Avenida Bernardo O'Higgins on a triumphal entry into Santiago, police arrested five Communists for erecting pro-Castro signs. A portrait of Cuban Premier Fidel Castro was torn down from the Communist controlled Central Labor Union (CUT) headquarters along the route.

In his speech Monday night Eisenhower said he was certain that South Americans, as well as North Americans, were "concerned to have guaranteed disarmament replace the mad race for destructive power, to have negotiation replace arrogant threat, and to have truth replace blatant propaganda."

That is why, he said, his discussions on cold war problems with Alessandri and other Latin chiefs-of-state were proving "of incalculable importance."

After arriving here, Eisenhower rode through streets lined with applauding Chileans eight and 10 deep. The city reception was smaller than those in Rio de Janeiro and Buenos Aires, but it was warm and enthusiastic.

He Acknowledges Cheers
Riding from the U.S. Embassy, where he appeared to have taken a short nap, Eisenhower drove again through cheering, flag-waving crowds to lay a wreath at the monument to Bernardo O'Higgins, Chile's national hero, and go on to the presidential palace for a formal meeting with Alessandri.

Eisenhower beamed and waved both hands over his head to acknowledge the cheers as he rode into the city from Los Cerrillos Airport with Alessandri.

Standing in the back of the open touring car, Eisenhower grinned and seemed vigorous and refreshed after a fatiguing weekend of golf, fishing and business talks in the Argentine mountain resort of Bariloche.

It was a warm, sunny day with the mercury in the low 80's. The President's face beamed sun-pink under the showers of confetti and blue and red flowers that rained from overhanging buildings.

She lived with an only daughter, Catherine.

All-Male Jury To Get Van Rie Murder Case

BOSTON (AP) — Trial Judge Frank Murray announced Monday that Willem Van Rie's first-degree murder case will go to an all-male jury Tuesday. He called the state's evidence in the strange death of Lynn Kauffman as "wholly circumstantial."

Murray recessed court in mid-afternoon to give both sides time to prepare their closing arguments.

A circumstantial case is one in which there is no eyewitness to a crime — unless it be the defendant — and no evidence of a direct nature to connect the defendant with the crime. However, circumstantial evidence is sufficient in many cases to sustain a conviction.

The state came to the virtual end of its case against Van Rie with a pathologist's testimony that Miss Kauffman was badly beaten before she drowned.

Dr. Arthur E. O'Dea, former Rhode Island medical examiner, took the stand as a state rebuttal witness. He contradicted the defense theory that Miss Kauffman was injured in a suicidal leap into Boston Harbor from the Dutch ship Utrecht.

"The first interpretation of these types of injuries is that this victim suffered them as a result of a beating," O'Dea said.

The defense rested its case early in the 15th trial day. Van Rie's conviction could mean the death penalty.

The boyish, Van Rie, 31, radio operator of the Utrecht, is accused of beating the 23-year-old American divorcee senseless last Sept. 18 in a quarrel in her cabin, then throwing her overboard.

The pair were shipboard lovers during Lynn's 44-day passage back to America from the Orient last summer. The state contends Van Rie, a married man, feared she might be pregnant and in a mood to expose the affair.

A man of wealth who speaks the poor man's language, Bowles probably is less well known as a politician than as the man who sat on the price lid for the government in World War II and later became an outstanding diplomat as Ambassador to India.

West Will Fly High To Berlin

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United States, Britain and France intend to resume high altitude plane flights into Communist-encircled West Berlin soon even though Soviet fighters made threatening passes at such flights a year ago.

The decision, certain to anger the Russians, was revealed on Monday by diplomatic sources here. It comes two and one-half months before the Western Allies sit down with Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev at the May 16 summit meeting to discuss the explosive Berlin problem. Khrushchev has demanded that the Allies get out of the city.

In another move adding to pre-summit tensions, the Russians are trying to force the West into a de facto recognition of Communist East Germany. They have done so by changing the wording on passes granted to the West's military liaison group at the Soviet high command's headquarters in Potsdam beyond free Berlin.

Officials said Russia was being notified through diplomatic channels of the Big Three decision to resume flights in the air corridor between West Germany and West Berlin at altitudes above 10,000 feet. The corridor crosses giving birth to a son in St. Peter's General Hospital.

Reunion In U.S. Moves Nearer For Family Of 4

MOSCOW (UPI) — Mrs. Barbara Armonas and her son, John, visited the U.S. Embassy here Monday to begin formalities that will permit them to leave for the United States and family life in Cleveland as promised by Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev.

The Armonas family has been apart for 20 years. The father and his daughter, Donna, live in suburban Wickliffe.

Mrs. Armonas and her son appeared understandably nervous when they appeared at the Embassy.

Mrs. Armonas said they would bring with them only personal belongings and a few small gifts such as Lithuanian ties and jewelry. While waiting for their final papers, they said they hoped to do some shopping and perhaps go to the theater.

The Armonas family has been split between Cleveland and Lithuania since the beginning of the World War II.

Motorist Gets Traffic Ticket 30 Years Late

NAPLES, Italy (AP) — Police finally got around to handing a 30-year-old traffic ticket to Desiderio Cevana. The ticket, which apparently had been lost in a maze of municipal red tape, didn't say exactly what he had done back in 1930, and Cevana doesn't remember. But time had made the ticket cheap, so he paid it. It was for 260 lire. That is less than 45 cents today. It was about 25 dollars when the ticket was written.

Finch Defense Fails In Bid For New Testimony

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Dr. R. Bernard Finch's attorney failed Monday in a surprise attempt to introduce new testimony at the wealthy surgeon's sensational murder trial.

He then began his last-ditch appeal to the jury that holds power to free the doctor and his pretty mistress, Carole Tregoff, or send them to the gas chamber.

Husky, handsome Grant B. Cooper turned to the jurors, smiled and said: "I've waited a long time to discuss the facts of this case with you."

He called his client's co-prosecutors fine fellows—"men of the utmost integrity"—and attributed the murder charges against Dr. Finch to wrong conclusions by police. He said jury prosecution witnesses were "not to be relied upon."

Dr. Finch, 42, and Miss Tregoff, 23, his receptionist before she became his paramour, have been on trial since Dec. 8, charged with murdering the doctor's socialite wife, Barbara Jean, 36.

The doctor testified the shooting at the Finch estate in suburban West Covina last July 18 was accidental. It happened, he said, while he and his wife struggled for a gun she pulled after he and Miss Tregoff went there to discuss Mrs. Finch's divorce plans.

The state says the defendants planned the slaying.

The prosecution has ended its final arguments. Miss Tregoff's attorneys have ended their summation.

Soviet Cuts Prices On Luxury Items

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union announced Monday night price cuts on a wide range of consumer goods, including several in the luxury class. The Soviet news agency Tass said the list includes polar fox furs, electric sewing machines, silverware, some makes of cameras, radios and sporting guns, marmalade, cocoa and coffee with evaporated milk. The people, said the agency, will benefit by an annual saving of some 2½ billion rubles from the cuts, ranging up to 30 per cent. The official rate of the ruble is 25 cents.

Reunion In U.S. Moves Nearer For Family Of 4

MOSCOW (UPI) — Mrs. Barbara Armonas and her son, John, visited the U.S. Embassy here Monday to begin formalities that will permit them to leave for the United States and family life in Cleveland as promised by Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev.

The Armonas family has been apart for 20 years. The father and his daughter, Donna, live in suburban Wickliffe.

Mrs. Armonas and her son appeared understandably nervous when they appeared at the Embassy.

Mrs. Armonas said they would bring with them only personal belongings and a few small gifts, such as Lithuanian ties and jewelry as typified by Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas. But he might be able to command considerable strength, if a stand-off did develop at the convention, from the liberals as represented by Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota and the moderates of the stripe of Sen. John F. Kennedy of Massachusetts.

Motorist Gets Traffic Ticket 30 Years Late

NAPLES, Italy (AP) — Police finally got around to handing a 30-year-old traffic ticket to Desiderio Cevana. The ticket, which apparently had been lost in a maze of municipal red tape, didn't say exactly what he had done back in 1930, and Cevana doesn't remember. But time had made the ticket cheap, so he paid it. It was for 250 lire. That is less than 45 cents today. It was about 25 dollars when the ticket was written.

Finch Defense Fails In Bid For New Testimony

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Dr. R. Bernard Finch's attorney failed Monday in a surprise attempt to introduce new testimony at the wealthy surgeon's sensational murder trial.

He then began his last-ditch appeal to the jury that holds power to free the doctor and his pretty mistress, Carole Tregoff, or send them to the gas chamber.

Husky, handsome Grant B. Cooper turned to the jurors, smiled and said: "I've waited a long time to discuss the facts of this case with you."

He called his client's co-prosecutors fine fellows—"men of the utmost integrity"—and attributed the murder charges against Dr. Finch to wrong conclusions by police. He said key prosecution witnesses were "not to be relied upon."

Dr. Finch, 42, and Miss Tregoff, 23, his receptionist before she became his paramour, have been on trial since Dec. 8, charged with murdering the doctor's socialite wife, Barbara Jean, 36.

The doctor testified the shooting at the Finch estate in suburban West Covina last July 18 was accidental. It happened, he said, while he and his wife struggled for a gun she pulled after he and Miss Tregoff went there to discuss Mrs. Finch's divorce plans.

The state says the defendants planned the slaying.

The prosecution has ended its final arguments. Miss Tregoff's attorneys have ended their summation.

West Will Fly High To Berlin

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United States, Britain and France intend to resume high altitude plane flights into Communist-encircled West Berlin soon even though Soviet fighters made threatening passes at such flights a year ago.

The decision, certain to anger the Russians, was revealed on Monday by diplomatic sources here. It comes two and one-half months before the Western Allies sit down with Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev at the May 16 summit meeting to discuss the explosive Berlin problem. Khrushchev has demanded that the Allies get out of the city.

In another move adding to pre-summit tensions, the Russians are trying to force the West into a de facto recognition of Communist East Germany. They have done so by changing the wording on passes granted to the West's military liaison group at the Soviet high command's headquarters in Potsdam beyond free Berlin.

Officials said Russia was being notified through diplomatic channels of the Big Three decision to resume flights in the air corridor between West Germany and West Berlin at altitudes above 10,000 feet. The corridor crosses above the territory of Communist East Germany.

Dr. Arthur E. O'Dea, former Rhode Island medical examiner, took the stand as a state rebuttal witness. He contradicted the defense theory that Miss Kauffman was injured in a suicidal leap into Boston Harbor from the Dutch ship Utrecht.

"The first interpretation of these types of injuries is that this victim suffered them as a result of a beating," O'Dea said.

The defense rested its case early in the 15th trial day. Van Rie's conviction could mean the death penalty.

The boyish, Van Rie, 31, radio operator of the Utrecht, is accused of beating the 23-year-old American divorcee senseless last Sept. 18 in a quarrel in her cabin, then throwing her overboard.

The pair were shipboard lovers during Lynn's 44-day passage back to America from the Orient last summer. The state contends Van Rie, a married man, feared she might be pregnant and in a mood to expose the affair.

NEW BRUNSWICK, N.J. (AP) — Mrs. Maurice D'Aria of Bound Brook, N.J., was born a leap year baby Feb. 29, 1932. She celebrated her birthday Monday by giving birth to a son in St. Peter's General Hospital.

Soviet Cuts Prices On Luxury Items

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union announced Monday night price cuts on a wide range of consumer goods, including several in the luxury class. The Soviet news agency Tass said the list includes polar fox furs, electric sewing machines, silverware, some makes of cameras, radios and sporting guns, marmalade, cocoa and coffee with evaporated milk. The people, said the agency, will benefit by an annual saving of some 2½ billion rubles from the cuts, ranging up to 30 per cent. The official rate of the ruble is 25 cents.

Aberdeen's Commanding General Retires

BALTIMORE (AP)—Maj. Gen. The 57-year-old commanding general of Aberdeen Proving Ground received the salutes of his subordinates in 1958 for his contributions to men for the last time to end a United States rocketry, retired career which began when he was from the Army Monday.

He retired for medical reasons.

Retirement ceremonies began with a 13-gun salute and Toftoy inspected a guard of honor. Then the 324th Army Band played "Ruffles and Flourishes," "The General's March" and "Mr. Guided Missile March," which was composed in Toftoy's honor by the band leader, Chief Warrant Officer Anthony R. Bacca.

As the band played "Auld Lang Syne," Toftoy said farewell to a line of senior staff officers. Then he and his wife drove off for Florida and their new residence on the Isle of Capri near St. Petersburg.

President Eisenhower awarded Toftoy the Distinguished Service Medal two years ago for "exceptionally meritorious service to the government in positions of great responsibility from June 1945 to February 1958."

The citation noted that Toftoy had a hand in selecting 130 German scientists to be brought to this country to conduct preliminary work in the United States missile program after World War II.

In 1954, Toftoy took command of Redstone Arsenal in Huntsville, Ala. The citation said Toftoy was "credited with personally directing the program that had led to the acquisition of a complete guided missile team... that has contributed immeasurably to guided missile technology in the United States."

Girl Is Baltimore's First Leap Year Baby

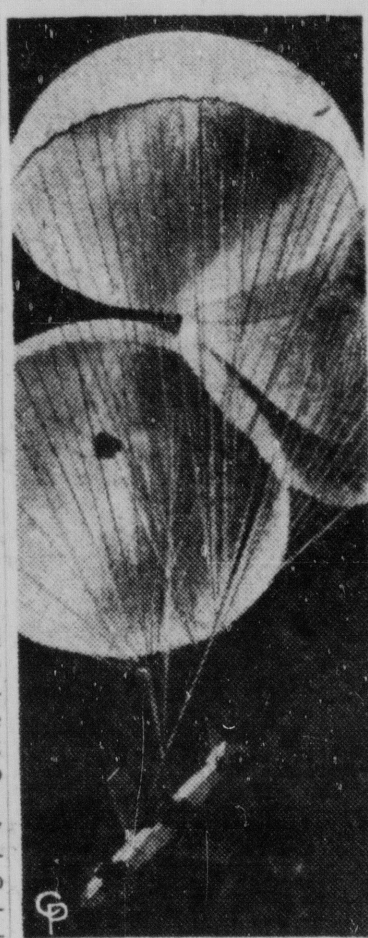

BALTIMORE (AP)—The first leap year baby born in the city Monday was a girl, the daughter of an Anne Arundel County couple. She was born at 12:30 a.m. in Lutheran Hospital and weighed 6 pounds 11 ounces.

The father, James L. Slaig of Ferndale, said the baby will be named Janet Lee. The Slaigs have one other child, also a girl.

Will she have to wait four years for her first birthday party? "No," said Slaig, "she'll have one every year."

Nomination Approved

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Senate Judiciary Committee Monday approved Charles F. Paul to be U.S. district judge for the northern district of West Virginia. President Eisenhower had nominated Paul.

Three Women Seized On Abortion Charges

BALTIMORE (AP)—Three women were arrested on abortion charges when Baltimore County police made a weekend raid.

Two of the women were picked up at a Cockeysville home in suburban Baltimore while an abortion allegedly was being performed on a 34-year-old divorcee.

Police charged Mrs. Ruth Hutson, 66, with committing an illegal abortion. Mrs. Marion Vernie, 32, and Mrs. Emma Holland, 53, were charged with conspiracy. Mrs. Holland's home was the one raided.

The three have been released in bail and a preliminary hearing will be held Wednesday in Towson Police Court.

Detective Capt. Elmer F. Adams led the raiding party, which included another detective, two officers and three policewomen.

Woman, 35, Who Defied Tax Men Goes To Prison

CHICAGO (AP)—A woman who went on a hunger strike rather than cooperate with Internal Revenue Service investigators started serving a prison term Monday in the Federal Women's Reformatory at Alderson, W. Va.

The woman, Miss Eroseanna Robinson, 35, Negro athletic instructor at a Chicago welfare center, was taken Saturday from the U.S. Public Health Service Hospital in Chicago for the automobile trip to West Virginia.

Her legal troubles started when she failed to file income tax returns for the years 1954-58, contending such money was being used for military and war purposes.

U.S. District Judge Edwin A. Robson on Jan. 27 sentenced her to an indefinite term in the Cook County jail when she refused to cooperate with Internal Revenue Service agents by producing records of her income.

She then went on a 19-day hunger strike which was ended when she was removed to the U.S. Public Health Service Hospital. Judge Robson sentenced her to a year

83 F27 Propjets Sold By Fairchild

HAGERSTOWN (AP)—Fairchild Engine and Airplane Corp. recently sold five F27 prop jet transports to Turkish Airlines Inc. and Ozark Air Lines Inc. is considering purchase of two next summer.

Fairchild has reported sales of 83 of the twin-engine planes which are designed for short to intermediate range flights.

The aircraft firm figures it may take sales of about 100 to reach the break-even point—after which it starts making money on the plane.

The F27 sells for a basic price of $720,000. Such extra equipment as radar and automatic pilot may boost that to $900,000.

The plane is playing the major effort in putting Fairchild in the black—it is expected to net around one million dollars for 1959—after a 17-million loss in 1958.

To diversify its output, Fairchild has started building aluminum boats and 16 and 24-foot models are on sale in stores here.

and a day term in the reformatory when she refused a second time to produce records of her income.

Keating Pushes Bill

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Kenneth B. Keating (R-NY) urged a Senate Judiciary subcommittee Monday to approve a bill that would abolish mandatory capital punishment in the District of Columbia in first degree murder cases.

Keating is sponsor of a bill that would permit a District of Columbia judge to impose a life sentence in first degree murder cases if the jury recommends mercy.

"Getting Along Well"

Saves 58 miles of travel,

and $12.11 of expense in two weeks
by phoning friends, family, doctor and department stores

Mrs. Carroll of Catonsville, Maryland, uses her phone to chat with a friend about a change in time of the Card Club meeting.

Mr. and Mrs. Carroll are active in their church, the P.T.A. and the Boy Scouts. These activities, combined with raising two teenagers (Patricia 16 and Phil 13), make their phone an important part of running their home.

Like other busy wives and mothers, Mrs. Carroll has many activities to attend to each day. She knew her phone was a help to her—but she thought she'd like to know exactly what it saved in time, money and travel. To find out, she kept a telephone diary of all calls made or received for a two-week period.

Her diary showed that phone calls saved days of waiting for information... hours and miles of travel on everyday errands, and friendly visits. Not surprisingly, the money saved on travel was greater than the cost of her phone.

Maybe you'll never keep a telephone diary—but if you take a few minutes to think of the value of your phone to you, we believe you'll agree that your phone pays for itself in convenience—and in money saved as well.

Keeping Up With Hollywood

by Louella Parsons

HOLLYWOOD—Yves Montand Hungary, is completed and ready to go in its American release. I like Brahms? the Francoise Sagan book. Anatole Litvak, who is making the motion picture in Paris this summer, has asked Montand to co-star with Ingrid Bergman, who has already signed with Tola. It was Litvak who directed Bergman's Academy-winning "Anastasia," and she has always said she would make any picture she possibly could for him. They are both a sensation at Ciro's.

Seems likely that Montand will accept this offer, unless he and Simone Signoret are unwilling to leave the U.S.A. But since Paris is his home, I see no reason for his not jumping at the chance to act with Bergman. His new album "An Evening with Yves Montand" has had a big sale, testifying to his popularity.

It becomes more and more apparent that Lucille Ball is becoming restless in Hollywood and has her eye turned toward the East. She's been working like a Top. Ray's very happy over the baseball player in training with Kwan girl, who, although she's had no experience acting, is picked from New York and while up very fast. He says that back in Manhattan Lucille leased practically all of the scenes made an apartment for a year with an in Hong Kong will be re-shot, option on more time.

Even more indicative, she has made plans to put her children in school in New York starting the September term. What does all this sound like? You guessed it—Lucy has been talking about a musical to be written especially for her.

That exciting, electrifying Italian singer, Katyna Ranieri, is about to sign with Joe Pasternak to sing the title song for "Is It a Sin" and this movie, made in Talked to Ray Stark in London, and he told me that he is so pleased with Nancy Kwan in "World of Suzie Wong" that he has signed her to star in "Kowloon," which also will be filmed in Hong Kong. He won't have any writers working on it, however, while the writers' strike is on.

He is negotiating with Jimmy Woolf for Laurence Harvey for the male lead, and for Jack Clayton, who directed "Room at the Top." After Ingrid Bergman's daughter finishes school and gets her master's degree, and Fuller Callaway III has a vacation, they'll go to Paris, where Henry will introduce her new husband to her mother.

Ingrid and Jenny had a very nice conversation over the long distance telephone, and Ingrid invited the couple to visit her. In about to sign with Joe Pasternak married a man older than herself when he married Peter Sin" and this movie, made in

City Council Considers System For Pay Merit

The Mayor and Council yesterday took under consideration a proposed ordinance which establishes a merit pay plan including minimums and maximums for the position for all non-elected employees and officials of the city.

The ordinance also provides for the establishment of the position of a personnel officer. The plan was discussed by council with Milton Milton, director of the Municipal Technical Advisory Service which is sponsored jointly by the University of Maryland and Maryland Municipal League, College Park. Milton had been requested by council to assist in setting up the plan.

As proposed, temporary authority as personnel officer would be invested in the city clerk, Wallace G. Ullery, until such time as the position is created and filled.

He would be responsible for recommendations for establishment of and classification and reclassification of all positions under Civil Service with approval of the Civil Service Commission; recommend to the commission and after adoption by it and the Mayor and Council, administer rates of compensation covering all classes of positions in the classification system; establish, with approval of the commission, standards of qualifications for all employment positions established by council; maintain required personnel records; and administer such rules and procedures set forth relating to the pay plan. The Mayor and Council would be responsible for adopting necessary rules for regulation of personnel matters; approving and adopting establishment, change or discontinuance of all positions or classes of positions, proving that in connection with adoption of the annual budget, council will approve all salary schedules.

The Civil Service Commission must make all recommendations for any change in pay classification as pertains to job, job titles, maximum and minimum salaries to the Mayor and Council through the personnel officer; hear all appeals and examine all requests for reclassification; and recommend measures calculated to increase efficiency and to promote salary schedules.

Proposed effective date is July 1.

Secrets Of Charm

Make The Right Move

No matter to what manner or station in life a woman is born, her charm must be of her own making!

It is the result of studying and analyzing what composes the charm of other women — and then applying to yourself what best suits your particular individuality.

Such study will prove to you quickly that to be charming, you must teach your body to move gracefully. Wherever you find charm, you find grace in movement.

To acquire, study and analyze each motion you make. Then learn how to make it correctly with sure poise and rhythmic grace.

How important even the smallest gesture can be exemplified in the fame of the gracious bow of England's queen. Just the wave of her hand has become the insignia of the friendly intent of her nation.

In her own realm, every woman should take equal pains to perfect the picture others see of her — and not just for big occasions but for every day.

The importance of this daily watchfulness was impressed on me recently when a group of teenagers came to see me, and seated themselves on the floor around my desk. After we'd finished our pleasant exchange of ideas, and the girls got up, it was quickly apparent that one was going to grow into a lovely woman. While others grunted, groaned, pushed and hoisted, she had complete command over her motions, and rose as gently and effortlessly from the floor as a beautiful vapor.

Since she was sitting on her right hip with her legs curled back toward her body, she gave herself a gentle push with her right hand. This gave her body just enough momentum to enable her to roll up onto both knees. She then put her right foot firmly HOLLYWOOD—Yves Montand Hungary, is completed and ready is reading the script of "Do You Go in the American release. Like Brahms?" the Francoise Sagan book. Anatole Litvak, who is told you some time ago that Pas-gan book. Anatole Litvak, who is making the motion picture in Paris this summer, has asked first all-Hungarian-made picture Montand to co-star with Ingrid Bergman, who has already signed with Toia. It was Litvak who di-talking terms to her husband and reeted Bergman's Academy-win-conductor, Riz Ortolani, to write ning "Anastasia," and she has al-ways said she would make any picture she possibly could for him. They are both a sensation at Ciro's.

Seems likely that Montand will accept this offer, unless he and Simone Signoret are unwilling to leave the U.S.A. But since Paris is his home, I see no reason for his not jumping at the chance to act with Bergman. His new al-bum "An Evening with Yves Mon-tand" has had a big sale, testifying to his popularity.

City Council Considers System For Pay Merit

The Mayor and Council yester-day took under consideration a proposed ordinance which estab-lishes a merit pay plan including minimums and maximums for position for all non-elected em-ployees and officials of the city.

The ordinance also provides for the establishment of the po-sition of a personnel officer.

As proposed, temporary au-thority as personnel officer would be invested in the city clerk, Wallace G. Ullery, until such time as the position is created and filled.

He would be responsible for recommendations for establish-ment of and classification and reclassification of all positions under Civil Service with approval of the Civil Service Commission; recommend to the commission and after adoption by it and the Mayor and Council, adminis-ter rates of compensation covering all classes of positions in the classification system; establish, with approval of the commission, standards of qualifications for all employment positions established by council; maintain required personnel records; and adminis-ter such rules and procedures set forth relating to the pay plan.

The Mayor and Council would be responsible for adopting neces-sary rules for regulation of per-sonnel matters; approving and adopting establishment, change or discontinuance of all positions or classes of positions, proving that in connection with adop-tion of the annual budget, council will approve all proposed positions; approving and adopting salary schedules for classes of positions, providing that in connection with the budget, council will approve all salary schedules.

DEAR ANN: My husband's main silent but it's been a struggle 18-year-old son by a former mar-riage lives in this town with his mother.

The boy (I'll call him Howard) is not close to his father. I've never said one word against the boy although I feel he uses his dad only as a cash register.

Howard has a key to our home. Last night we left a party early because I didn't feel well. We walked into a pitch-dark house and found Howard and a girl in the living room. His shoes and tie were off, hair a mess, lipstick on his face and so on. The girl in his arms was a little chippie who couldn't have been more than 15.

I've been careful not to talk against the boy but I don't ap-prove of this. Do I have the right to speak up? — NOT HIS MOTH-ER

DEAR NOT: Maybe you're not his mother, but the home is half yours and you have the right to complain when someone fouls your nest.

Your husband should insist that Howard surrender his key. Now that you know what goes on, failure to lower the boom would be tantamount to silent approval of his immoral conduct.

Encourage the boy to bring nice girls to the house to meet you — WHEN YOU'RE AT HOME.

My idea of a good date is a boy who will talk sense. I don't like drag-racing, rock and roll or movie-star gossip. I'm interested in religion, service to others, good books, classical music and spiritual values.

My girl friends say I'd better keep these ideals to myself or I'll never land a boy friend. To be honest, I haven't had many dates and the boys who have taken me out haven't called back.

I'd like to have dates but I'm not willing to pretend an interest in things that bore me. Must a girl compromise these days?

Draws Laughter

JAKARTA, Indonesia (UPI) — Visiting Russian Premier Nikita Khrushchev drew roars of laughter from more than 100 newsmen attending a press conference here Monday when he replied to a question whether he had secret talks scheduled with President Eisenhower.

"Yes, President Eisenhower was here yesterday and I talked with him for several hours. He left for Washington early this morning," Khrushchev said with a chuckle.

U. Md. Extension Horticulturist 39 Years Retires

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (AP) — Albert F. Vierheller has retired after 39 years of duty as extension horticulturist at the University of Maryland.

After military service in the World War I, Vierheller established the horticultural study courses and field projects at the university for disabled ex-service men under a GI bill. He later assumed extension field work with fruit growers throughout the state.

As secretary of the Maryland State Horticultural Society he has been closely associated with the formation of the Maryland section of Appalachian Apple Service, a four-state growers' organization for apple promotion.

He also assisted in the setup of the Maryland State Apple Tax Commission to administer a grower tax for apple publicity. He helped inaugurate the Maryland Fruit Marketers' Cooperative to enter collective bargaining with fruit processors.

State Dentists Plan Convention June 8-12

The Maryland State Dental Association will hold its annual convention June 8-12 at the Traymore Hotel in Atlantic City, according to Dr. J. P. Cappuccio, Baltimore, chairman of general arrangements.

Dr. George B. Clendenin, Bethesda, will preside at the meeting, which will also feature business sessions, the election of officers, sports and social activities.

The 13th Annual Motor Fleet Supervisors' Course, scheduled at the University of Maryland April 4 to 8 has added the very latest technique in human resuscitation to its curricula and will feature the originator and developer of the method as an instructor in the course. He is Capt. Martin McMahon, a Baltimorean and a member of the Baltimore City Fire Department.

Capt. McMahon worked from January, 1957 until June, 1958 in conjunction with Dr. Peter Safar, head anesthetologist at City Hospital in Baltimore, in the development of the mouth-to-mouth method of resuscitation.

The Maryland Motor Truck Association is one of the local sponsors of the institute and American Trucking Associations is among the national sponsors.

Supreme Court Upholds Decision

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI) — The State Supreme Court Monday upheld a Monongalia County Circuit Court decision that the J&G Construction Co., Parkersburg, could not collect all of a debt owed to it by Freeport Coal Co., Morgantown because the five-year statute of limitations had expired.

The Parkersburg firm alleged that the other company owes it $35,000 from coal sold and delivered to Wieman & Ward Co., Pittsburgh, under a 1946 contract. Freeport admitted a debt of $10,570.

Leased Plant Tax Bill Killed

ANNAPOLIS (AP) — A Washington County legislator killed a bill Monday on the ground it would impose additional taxation on the already financially hurting Fairchild Co.

The bill introduced by the Baltimore County delegation would have subjected facilities leased by the federal government to private companies to personal and property taxes.

Del. McElwee (D-Washington) brought a hearing on the bill to an abrupt ending by moving to exempt his county from its provisions. Del. Robinson (D-Balto 4th) pointed out, "This kills the bill and there's no sense taking up any more time of the Ways and Means Committee with it."

Del. Boone (D-Balto County), chairman of the committee, called for a vote on McElwee's motion and it was given overwhelming approval.

Exemption of Washington County had the effect of making the bill unconstitutional since only measures applying to the entire state may be passed at this 30-day session.

Baltimore County officials sought passage of the bill because it has tried to collect such taxes on government leased property from the Marlin and Bendix companies.

The county did impose the taxes, but the companies have protested and the question currently is in court. The proposed Baltimore County taxes for the past two years amount to $1,823,569.

W. Stuart Bushong, attorney for Fairchild, protested passage of the bill would "wipe out the defenses" in the pending court case and protested this was unfair.

He pleaded with the committee not to impose more taxes on Fairchild, where employment once 10,000 is now down to 4,000.

"Hagerstown is one of the worst communities in the United States for unemployment," Bushong said.

Monongalia Court Appeal Turned Down

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI) — The State Supreme Court Monday turned down an appeal by Anne E. Meligan for a Monongalia County Circuit Court trial.

She maintained she was injured when she slipped and fell on an icy driveway at a Morgantown gas station more than two years ago. The lower court said the station was not obliged to keep its sidewalk clear of snow.

W.Va. High Court To Review Sentence

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI) — The State Supreme Court agreed Monday to review a 1-to-10 year sentence given Daniel L. Firestone by Wyoming County Juvenile Court Judge Robert M. Worrell.

Firestone, convicted on a breaking and entering charge in 1957, was sent to the Boys Forestry Camp at Davis, Tucker County and later Worrell sentenced him to the Moundsville Penitentiary.

Firestone charged in a petition to the high court that this move was illegal because he had not been previously indicted and also maintained that the juvenile court had no authority to sentence to the penitentiary.

A hearing was set for April 12.

Mauritius, 450 miles east of Madagascar, lies in a section of the Indian Ocean where severe storms are frequent.

A Struggle For Economic Survival

In the debate over its space and military status the country may be excused for not attaching greater significance to a quieter threat to its future. The threat is from foreign goods produced at low prices.

The Russians sold aluminum in Europe at 90 per cent of the going price and so upset the market that aluminum mills in Canada had to shut down for a while. Economists cite the fact that Japanese and German factories are making large inroads in the world market for small radios, photographic equipment and typewriters. Germany can deliver drop forgings to the United States at a price that matches an American manufacturer's costs for bare material.

The explanation for most of this serious competition is in labor costs — a replica of a $26 American pen and pencil set sells for $4 in the Far East because it is made by a Chinese worker who earns 20 cents a day. Russia's cheap aluminum can likewise be explained by slave labor.

The competitive edge of some non-Communist countries, however, cannot be attributed to slave labor, although lower wages are the key to their lower production costs. Higher American wages are offset by higher American productivity to some extent.

Yet though an American steelworker produces 50 per cent more steel than his German counterpart, his pay is 350 per cent higher. What it comes down to is that the U. S. is in a serious struggle for economic survival.

No one would suggest that American wages or the American standard of living be sacrificed. The solution seems to lie in letting the nation's superior production techniques operate without artificial restraints.

These Days

By George E. Sokolsky

Peace Is Wonderful

Peace is truly wonderful if it lasts long and is not as expensive as war. The realistic advantage of peace is that few are killed during its sway, except by accidents and over-eating. War is to be regarded as dreadful because people are killed outright and cities are devastated. The objectives of peace and war are identical, namely, the development, growth and defense of a country.

Andrew Carnegie was a lover of peace and he founded the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace 50 years ago to establish in the minds of men that war is "the foulest blot upon our civilization." That being so, we have had the most devastating wars in history. In fact, some of the officers of the Carnegie Endowment favored World War I to make the world safe for democracy. Besides all the world is now preparing for a still more devastating war. Civilization does have plenty of blots on it despite the laudable efforts of the late Andrew Carnegie and Henry Ford. The latter attempted, single-handed to stop World War I by his Peace Ship. The genius of that enterprise was Rosika Schwimmer, a forensic pacifist.

Great men have been associated with the Carnegie Endowment — Elihu Root, Nicholas Murray Butler, John W. Davis, John Foster Dulles. Somewhere in there should have been the name of Alger Hiss, but apparently he belonged to a subsidiary organization called Carnegie Endowment for International Conciliation.

War often changes its nature and its propaganda. Presently war is called peace and President Eisenhower and Nikita Khrushchev travel about the world cementing allies for peace. We call our alliance NATO and the Russians call theirs, the Warsaw Pact. These trips of the two heads of alliances invariably cost their countries great sums which the so-called underprivileged countries exact from them usually not for support but for neutrality.

President Sukarno of Indonesia, upon whom Khrushchev counted, declared himself not only neutral but insisted upon taking aid from all sides "with no strings attached." It all sounded like those messages Bruno Hauptmann sent to Dr. John F. Condon regarding the kidnapped Lindbergh baby — but that was long ago and was a limited escapade. Nowadays everything is done on so large a scale that small things become over-emphasized.

President Eisenhower is more fortunate than Chairman Khrushchev. All his promises are arranged before he arrives so that he has nothing to do but take the bows, which is easy for his personality. He would never be as gauche as to reject a gift because it was hand-made rather than the product of a machine. Eisenhower would have praised the beauty of the handicraft, and he would have meant it. The machine is a device not an ideal.

The United States does, however, face an extraordinarily important problem in its peace campaign. It is losing its effective majority in the United Nations. The Bandung Conference of Asiatic and African Nations (1955) set off a movement toward neutrality which is now beginning to affect the countries of Latin America.

Cuba, which heretofore was always in the American camp in the United Nations, will most likely shift to the Russian camp although it will not join the Warsaw Pact countries. It could be something like Yugoslavia, a country that regards itself as independent, takes aid from both sides, but votes with Soviet Russia on most questions in the United Nations. This tendency could spread to Venezuela and Panama unless American statesmanship represents more effective factors than are now apparent.

Castro's offer to settle all outstanding questions between the United States and Cuba on Castro's terms is an example of the "new imbucism" for which the United States is itself responsible. Castro has been encouraged to believe that the Eisenhower Administration will accept any affront, any insult, any evident danger before it will take an effective act. If the reply to Castro could be a reduction of the sugar quota and an elimination of the 2 cents per pound subsidy, what could Castro do? Would he hurl a bomb at Miami?

When a nation lives in fear, it is treated as all cowards are. When a nation accepts peace as a method of war, it has given the enemy the advantage of time and place; it has even given him the choice of the duelling weapon.

The Mole Hunt

Ruling Gives Labor, Management Equal Rights

By David Lawrence

WASHINGTON — The Supreme Court of the United States has tossed out the window as unworkable the abstract phrasing of existing federal law which says that both employers and unions must bargain collectively "in good faith."

The Court said, in effect, that the absence of good faith is too difficult to prove. Three Justices — Frankfurter, Harlan and Whitaker — disagreed. They contended that each case should turn on the evidence submitted, and they urged that the latest case should have gone back to the National Labor Relations Board for rehearing. So, while the Justices are unanimous in rejecting the Board's conclusion in this instance, there is a significant division as to what may or may not be done generally under the law to exert "economic pressure" while collective bargaining is going on.

In the case just decided, the contract between an insurance agents' union and their employer had already expired. Also the employees had customarily received no salaries but only commissions. They chose, however, to carry on what might be called a "slow down." They ceased for a time to solicit new business and, after resuming such work, didn't comply with the company's reporting procedures. In a sense they violated their understanding with the employer, who gave them exclusive rights to solicit business in certain area on condition that they would perform certain duties each day.

But the language of the majority of the court is so broad that it looks as if it would cover even instances where regular wages are paid and the workers carry on a "slow down" during a contract period. Up to now the employers of the country, while charging "bad faith" when such events happened during a collective bargaining negotiation, rarely undertook any disciplinary action in reprisal, such as firing the employees involved.

What the latest Supreme Court ruling may do is to encourage employers to dismiss employees who don't do a full day's work for specified amounts of pay. If employers had done this before, the unions surely would have filed with the National Labor Relations Board charges of lack of "good faith" during collective bargaining. Now it would appear that the way is open either for dismissals or for suits to be brought against unions which carry on "harassing" activities. Indeed, there might be legal redress even when work is continued in periods when contracts have already expired, provided damage to a business can be proved.

The significant thing is that the majority of the Court evidently feels that the "good faith" clause is hard to rule upon because it is a vague phrase from which inferences are drawn that are speculative, and because evidence is difficult to relate to "good faith" or "bad faith."

Referring to a previous decision, the Supreme Court's majority opinion says the employer in that case "could have discharged or taken other appropriate disciplinary action against the employees participating in these 'slow-down,' 'sit-in,' and arguably unprotected disloyal tactics." It, however, adds:

"But surely that a union activity is not protected against disciplinary action does not mean that it constitutes a refusal to bargain in good faith. The reason why the ordinary economic strike is not evidence of a failure to

Inside Washington

By Henry Cathcart

BARDEN — Chairman Graham Barden (D., North Carolina, of the House Labor and Education Committee, is under tremendous pressure to reconsider his announced retirement from Congress at the end of this year.

The reason is that the Democrat in line to succeed him is Adam Clayton Powell, colored Representative from Harlem, whose racist agitation has made him feared by both friends and enemies of labor and education legislation.

Under House seniority rules, nothing short of Republican control can stop Powell from succeeding Barden. Powell himself is sure of re-election, as all efforts by Republicans and Democrats alike to defeat him have failed.

Powell has thrown many a monkey wrench into legislation by proposing anti-discrimination amendments in a variety of bills. Once an amendment of this sort is proposed on the floor, northern Democrats and Republicans must support it or run the risk of being anti-Negro. Then, when the amendment has been adopted, southern Democrats combining with Republicans have sufficient votes to defeat the legislation.

This is the heart of the coalition that has operated so effectively in Congress on some issues in recent years. Powell, as chairman, can be counted on to write anti-discrimination proposals into most of the legislation coming before his committee, which will have the effect of killing it.

VETO POLICY — Last year Congress tried to draft compromise legislation which would be "veto proof." In other words, they trimmed down their programs to a size they thought President Eisenhower would have to accept.

However, this year all signs point to a changed strategy. Democrats in control appear determined to pass legislation in the teeth of threatened vetoes. It looks like Eisenhower may establish a record of sorts for rejecting legislation.

One Democrat puts it this way, "In an election year, a veto sustained, like a veto overridden, will only serve to sharpen the issues."

Republicans Getting Ready To Run Against Reuther In 1960 Elections

By Drew Pearson

Labor And Politics

"I don't think that book is particularly unfair to you," spoke up Sen. Jack Kennedy of Massachusetts, defending his brother at the closed-door meeting.

"I am not complaining," retorted Goldwater. "I say 'just so they spell the name right'."

"Whatever you say about Bob," continued his elder brother, "I know all the problems, the disagreements, and so on. I am not sure I would use the words 'never in the combined history of my Senate career have I ever seen an employee with such impertinence, obstructionism,' and so on. These are rather extreme statements."

Senator Kennedy was referring to the report on Bob Kennedy, Bellino, Reuther, et al, which the Republicans proposed to publish.

"Bob, I am sure, can take care of himself, as I can," continued the elder Kennedy. "What I objected to before was your staff people implying that Carmine Bellino was guilty of something because he didn't turn up what you wanted."

Kennedy was referring to a section of the Republican report blasting Bellino for conducting a so-called "secret" examination of Walter Reuther's books and those of the United Auto Workers.

"I had not been told that he (Bellino) was going to testify as to the honesty of Walter Reuther and his bookkeeping," complained the Senator from Arizona. "I have never questioned, that never for one instant . . ."

"I was not surprised when you said that the books of the UAW were meticulously kept," he continued, addressing Bellino. "I would expect them to be meticulously kept. I was not surprised when you said Mr. Reuther's books were in perfect order and his accounts were in perfect order. In all the arguments I have had with that man, I have never had occasion to call him a dishonest man."

Locking Senate Horns

"What is the sense of implying something to Mr. Bellino?" shot in Senator Kennedy. "I am going, to make a real fight about your attempt to take a career man and spoil his reputation because he failed to produce something you thought he should have come up with."

"If you want to lock horns, Senator," snapped Goldwater, "we can lock horns."

"I'll be delighted to lock horns on this issue," Kennedy fired back. "I do not care what you say about me. I do care what you say about Bellino."

Republican Senators then proceeded to examine Bellino about his audit of the auto workers' books regarding the Kohler toilet appliances strike.

"Your investigation of the UAW books was confined to transactions relating to the Kohler strike?" asked Goldwater.

"Yes sir," replied Bellino. "I did satisfy myself as to the working of the international records. That is where I found they had an excellent accounting staff and that is what I reported."

"Where did the matter of investigating Reuther's individual books come in?" asked Sen. Carl T. Curtis, Nebraska Republican. "He invited it," replied Bellino.

"He turned in his income tax returns," interposed Sen. Sam Ervin of North Carolina.

Republican Senators finally agreed they would eliminate their criticism of Bellino and tone down their report in some other respects, but as the meeting adjourned it reminded clear that they intended to keep Walter Reuther as their chief opponent next November.

German Military Again

Defense Minister Strauss is beginning to throw his weight around inside the West German government. It was Strauss who came up with the fantastic idea of German military bases in Spain, a notion which has revived grim memories of Hitler.

Foreign Minister von Brentano opposed the idea. But Strauss insisted it was just a feeling-out operation and sent a military mission to Spain to talk it over with Generalissimo Franco.

Von Brentano was very much embarrassed when the British and American ambassadors found out about it. When they asked to see him, the Foreign Minister referred them to Defense Minister Strauss who instead of apologizing was indignant over their protests.

We're Losing Gold

By Leslie Gould

NEW YORK — The U.S. is continuing to lose gold — although at a slower rate than in 1959, when more than $1 billion left the country on top of $2 1/4 billion in '58.

The Federal Reserve, which keeps the score on this, reports $11 million lost in the current week, making the loss since the first of the year $35 million.

The total gold stock is now below $19 1/2 billion — the exact figure being $19,421,000,000. Ten years ago the U.S. had $25 1/2 billion.

Federal Reserve Chairman Martin doesn't seem to be concerned about this, nor has he any doubts about the so-called "gold standard" continuing to function.

This can be taken with a large grain of salt, for Mr. Martin's tight money policy is a factor. It has helped pile up short term foreign balances, attracted here by high interest rates. These in turn can largely be converted into gold—making for a further drain.

Here is the statistical picture that is making for the large deficit in American balance of payments:

U.S. excess of exports, $5.3 billion ten years ago, has dropped to less than $2 billion.

A rising trend of imports. Foreign short term or liquid dollar asset holdings have risen from $9.8 billion ten years ago to around $20 billion.

U.S. grants and credits — $44

1/2 billion — in the years since the war were a major factor in building up the economies of Western Europe and Japan to economic strength so that their industries can compete effectively with American.

U.S. military expenditures abroad, running about $600 million a year ten years ago, are now about $3.1 billion.

In addition the U.S. last year raised its quota to the International Monetary Fund by $1 billion 375 million, enlarged its subscription to the World Bank by $3 billion 175 million, although this is subject to call "only when required," set a $350 million subscription to the Inter-American Development Bank, with an additional $100 million toward a fund for "special operations" of the bank.

The book value of direct private American investments abroad, including profits reinvested, has doubled from the $1.3 billion average in the five years from 1950 through '54.

The dollar gap — which was pictured as such a threat 10 years ago — no longer exists. It can go the other way, despite Mr. Martin's confidence unless the U. S. balances its budget, curbs the wage price spiral here and steps up its exports, and gets the now prosperous countries of Western Europe and Japan to assume a bigger share of the aid to the underdeveloped nations.

Some Statistics On Health In The 1950s

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

Statisticians from the Metropolitan Life Insurance company have been busy bringing up up-to-date on the fabulous fifties. The death rate has not changed perceptibly from the previous decade. Mortality from influenza and pneumonia hasn't changed but that from disease of the heart, arteries, and kidneys is slightly lower. Cancer deaths rose slightly, more so in males.

The incidence of polio was 38,000 in 1954. It dropped to 8,500 in 1958 but rose in 1959 to 8,500. Almost 3 out of 4 cases were of the paralytic type. Fatalities from tuberculosis have decreased, thanks to drug therapy and more favorable economic conditions. Measles, scarlet fever, whooping cough, and diphtheria continued at the customary low levels last year.

Fewer mothers and babies died during the fifties than a decade earlier. This is doubly encouraging because of the record number of births.

But the grim reaper continued to have a field day with man's invention—the motor vehicle. A greater number of lives were lost in accidents—37,000 last year. Ten times this many were injured in traffic accidents. This massacre has been going on for years and is equivalent to the annual destruction of a moderate sized city. It will continue until the responsibility of driving a car is put on a par with that of lethal weapons.

The announcement of a plane mishap with "50 dead" is sickening. But the toll from such catastrophes during the year is insignificant compared with the highway slaughter. On a holiday weekend, 300 or more die.

The picture is bright despite statistics. Our population has increased by leaps and bounds and more people are arriving in this world than leaving. This is good news for the young and old in whom the death rate is greatest.

The record number of births and the saving of infants accounts for the large increase in the number of children. The over-all health of our people must be good because many more are living to a ripe old age. In this respect, listen to statistics with tongue in cheek.

NEAR AND FAR VISION

J. L. writes: Do a nearsighted person's eyes grow more farsighted with age?

REPLY

No. Nearsightedness (myopia) may progress until about age 25, when it becomes stationary. Presbyopia, in which the near point begins to recede, usually develops between the ages of 40 and 45. When this occurs in the nonmyopic, he holds the newspaper farther and farther away to see the print clearly. The nearsighted person usually brings the paper closer to the body to read but as presbyopia develops, may be able to read at a normal distance.

To the limit of space questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made when return stamped envelope is enclosed. Telephone inquiries not accepted. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnoses or prescribe for individual diseases.

A Struggle For Economic Survival

In the debate over its space and military status the country may be excused for not attaching greater significance to a quieter threat to its future. The threat is from foreign goods produced at low prices.

The Russians sold aluminum in Europe at 90 per cent of the going price and so upset the market that aluminum mills in Canada had to shut down for a while. Economists cite the fact that Japanese and German factories are making large inroads in the world market for small radios, photographic equipment and typewriters. Germany can deliver drop forgings to the United States at a price that matches an American manufacturer's costs for bare material.

The explanation for most of this serious competition is in labor costs — a replica of a $26 American pen and pencil set sells for $4 in the Far East because it is made by a Chinese worker who earns 20 cents a day. Russia's cheap aluminum can likewise be explained by slave labor.

The competitive edge of some non-Communist countries, however, cannot be attributed to slave labor, although lower wages are the key to their lower production costs. Higher American wages are offset by higher American productivity to some extent.

Yet though an American steelworker produces 50 per cent more steel than his German counterpart, his pay is 350 per cent higher. What it comes down to is that the U. S. is in a serious struggle for economic survival.

No one would suggest that American wages or the American standard of living be sacrificed. The solution seems to lie in letting the nation's superior production techniques operate without artificial restraints.

These Days

By George E. Sokolsky

Peace Is Wonderful

Peace is truly wonderful if it lasts long and is not as expensive as war. The realistic advantage of peace is that few are killed during its sway, except by accidents and over-eating. War is to be regarded as dreadful because people are killed outright and cities are devastated. The objectives of peace and war are identical, namely, the development, growth and defense of a country.

Andrew Carnegie was a lover of peace and he founded the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace 50 years ago to establish in the minds of men that war is "the foulest blot upon our civilization." That being so, we have had the most devastating wars in history. In fact, some of the officers of the Carnegie Endowment favored World War I to make the world safe for democracy. Besides all the world is now preparing for a still more devastating war. Civilization does have plenty of blots on it despite the laudable efforts of the late Andrew Carnegie and Henry Ford. The latter attempted, single-handed to stop World War I by his Peace Ship. The genius of that enterprise was Rosika Schwimmer, a forensic pacifist.

Great men have been associated with the Carnegie Endowment — Elihu Root, Nicholas Murray Butler, John W. Davis, John Foster Dulles. Somewhere in there should have been the name of Alger Hiss, but apparently he belonged to a subsidiary organization called Carnegie Endowment for International Conciliation.

War often changes its nature and its propaganda. Presently war is called peace and President Eisenhower and Nikita Khrushchev travel about the world cementing allies for peace. We call our alliance NATO and the Russians call theirs, the Warsaw Pact. These trips of the two heads of alliances invariably cost their countries great sums which the so-called underprivileged countries exact from them usually not for support but for neutrality.

President Sukarno of Indonesia, upon whom Khrushchev counted, declared himself not only neutral but insistent upon taking aid from all sides "with no strings attached." It all sounded like those messages Bruno Hauptmann sent to Dr. John F. Condon regarding the kidnapped Lindbergh baby — but that was long ago and was a limited escapade. Nowadays everything is done on so large a scale that small things become over-emphasized.

President Eisenhower is more fortunate than Chairman Khrushchev. All his promises are arranged before he arrives so that he has nothing to do but take the bows, which is easy for his personality. He would never be as gauche as to reject a gift because it was hand-made rather than the product of a machine. Eisenhower would have praised the beauty of the handicraft, and he would have meant it. The machine is a device not an ideal.

The United States does, however, face an extraordinarily important problem in its peace campaign. It is losing its effective majority in the United Nations. The Bandung Conference of Asiatic and African Nations (1955) set off a movement toward neutrality which is now beginning to affect the countries of Latin America.

Cuba, which heretofore was always in the American camp in the United Nations, will most likely shift to the Russian camp although it will not join the Warsaw Pact countries. It could be something like Yugoslavia, a country that regards itself as independent, takes aid from both sides, but votes with Soviet Russia on most questions in the United Nations. This tendency could spread to Venezuela and Panama unless American statesmanship represents more effective factors than are now apparent.

Castro's offer to settle all outstanding questions between the United States and Cuba on Castro's terms is an example of the "new impudence," for which the United States is itself responsible. Castro has been encouraged to believe that the Eisenhower Administration will accept any affront, any insult, any evident danger before it will take an effective act. If the reply to Castro could be a reduction of the sugar quota and an elimination of the 2 cents per pound subsidy, what could Castro do? Would he hurl a bomb at Miami?

When a nation lives in fear, it is treated as all cowards are. When a nation accepts peace as a method of war, it has given the enemy the advantage of time and place; it has even given him the choice of the duelling weapon.

Ruling Gives Labor, Management Equal Rights

By David Lawrence

WASHINGTON — The Supreme Court of the United States has tossed out the window as unworkable the abstract phrasing of existing federal law which says that both employers and unions must bargain collectively "in good faith."

The Court said, in effect, that the absence of good faith is too difficult to prove. Three Justices — Frankfurter, Harlan and Whitaker — disagreed. They contended that each case should turn on the evidence submitted, and they urged that the latest case should have gone back to the National Labor Relations Board for rehearing. So, while the Justices are unanimous in rejecting the Board's conclusion in this instance, there is a significant division as to what may or may not be done generally under the law to exert "economic pressure" while collective bargaining is going on.

Republicans Getting Ready To Run Against Reuther In 1960 Elections

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON — Tempers flared and hot words flowed in a closed-door meeting of the Senate rackets committee over the question of Walter Reuther. It was one of the most acrimonious of the many acid-tongued sessions held by this committee, so much so that the transcript has been kept secret. This column however can report what happened.

Sen. Barry Goldwater of Arizona, one of the few Republican Senators to be re-elected in the 1958 Democratic landslide, won his victory chiefly by running against Reuther, not Gov. Ernest McFarland, the man whose name was printed on the ballot as his opponent.

But in the closed-door session of the rackets committee Goldwater made this statement: "I have never in my life questioned Walter Reuther's personal honesty."

Despite this, Republican Senators hassled over the report they planned to issue on or about March 3 blasting not only Reuther, but Bob Kennedy, former counsel of their committee, and Carmine Bellino, accountant for the committee, for allegedly protecting Reuther. This was what produced the fireworks.

Democrats have inferred that the Republicans were readying a campaign document in the form of a minority Senate report which they could use next November. Goldwater in turn has been irked over Bob Kennedy's book, "The Enemy Within."

Labor And Politics

"I don't think that book is particularly unfair to you," spoke up Sen. Jack Kennedy of Massachusetts, defending his brother at the closed-door meeting.

Some Statistics On Health In The 1950s

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

Statisticians from the Metropolitan Life Insurance company have been busy bringing up up-to-date on the fabulous fifties. The death rate has not changed perceptibly from the previous decade. Mortality from influenza and pneumonia hasn't changed but that from disease of the heart, arteries, and kidneys is slightly lower. Cancer deaths rose slightly, more so in males.

The incidence of polio was 38,000 in 1954. It dropped to 5,800 in 1958 but rose in 1959 to 8,500. Almost 3 out of 4 cases were of the paralytic type. Fatalities from tuberculosis have decreased, thanks to drug therapy and more favorable economic conditions. Measles, scarlet fever, whooping cough, and diphtheria continued at the customary low levels last year.

Fewer mothers and babies died during the fifties than a decade earlier. This is doubly encouraging because of the record number of births.

But the grim reaper continued to have a field day with man's invention—the motor vehicle. A greater number of lives were lost in accidents—37,000 last year. Ten times this many were injured in traffic accidents. This massacre has been going on for years and is equivalent to the annual destruction of a moderate sized city. It will continue until the responsibility of driving a car is put on a par with that of lethal weapons.

The announcement of a plane mishap with "50 dead" is sickening. But the toll from such catastrophes during the year is insignificant compared with the highway slaughter. On a holiday weekend, 300 or more die.

The picture is bright despite statistics. Our population has increased by leaps and bounds and more people are arriving in this world than leaving. This is good

Montgomery Is Top Cage Team In W. Va.

Romney Lands 4th, Piedmont Voted 14th

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)—Unbeaten Montgomery was named Monday as West Virginia's mythical high school basketball champion by the United Press International Board of Coaches.

Coach Everett Perkins' Greyhounds received 178 points from the 20-member board in the ninth and final week of the balloting — 4 more than South Charleston.

South Charleston led the balloting eight consecutive weeks but started to decline two weeks ago as Montgomery applied the pressure. The Black Eagles are defending Class AAA champs.

Last week, 10 points separated the two teams with South Charleston on top by a 185-175 margin. When notified of Montgomery's selection, Perkins said he was "delighted and am very happy for the boys — they are a great gang."

Huntington and Romney held on to third and fourth places and Oceana moved up from sixth to fifth, trading places with St. Albans.

Ansted remained in seventh while defending Class A titleholder Athens jumped all the way from 15th to eighth. Wheeling Central Catholic dropped from eighth to ninth and Washington Irving, tied last week for 11th, slipped into the 10th spot.

Clarksburg Victory, ninth last week, slipped into 11th and Parkersburg from 10th to 12th. Others in the second 10 were Wheeling, Piedmont, Paden City and Beckley, tied for 13th; Mullens, Fairmont West and Kingwood, tied for 17th, and Pineville. Montgomery was the only Class AAA team to finish its season with a 20-0 record. The other undefeated club in the Top Ten was Romney, also owner of a 20-0 mark.

The Greyhounds finished second last season to Princeton, winner of the first two UPI mythical titles. This week they had eight of the 20 first place votes. South Charleston 5, Huntington 4 and Wheeling Central one.

Athletes Yell "Thief" At Olympic Site

Report Valuable Equipment Missing

SQUAW VALLEY, Calif. (AP)—The Olympic Village fast became a ghost town Monday with several international athletes yelling "Thief!" They complained of loss of valuable equipment.

Jean Vuarnet, French downhill skier who won the gold medal in the downhill race, complained. "They have thieves here. The many guards they had would have been better employed to look after our things than check our credentials all the time."

Vuarnet said one pair of his skis disappeared when he sent them back on a chair lift. The skiers usually take more than one pair up the mountains and use the pair they think best suited to conditions.

Roger Staub of Switzerland, winner of the giant slalom, said, "My parka and my coat were taken when I sent them back on the chair lift. The 'bandits' also stole two pairs of skis from my teammate Willy Forrer and one from teammate Fredy Brupbacher."

The racing skis cost about $100 a pair.

Undersheriff Fay Bates said that Sunday there were "five or six reports of stolen skis."

"We have been unable to locate them," he said Monday. "There were hundreds of skis in the village and they are very similar."

Village Director Bob Minerich said that had happened frequently during the games when an athlete would pick up another's gear by mistake.

Guy Perillat, French alpine combined world champion skier, reported losing his blouse with $150 in it, saying, "that was about all of my money."

There was hubbub at the village when the games ended Sunday but Managing Director H. D. Thoreau said additional security guards were on duty to prevent looting.

Normally the guards checked credentials of athletes, such as Vuarnet, to make sure unauthorized personnel did not get into the dormitories or dining halls.

Minerich said that often articles were mislaid by athletes themselves. He told of one frantic search for a jacket reported by a Hungarian athlete to have been stolen. The jacket contained passport and credentials.

"After searching, we found it hanging in his closet," Minerich said. "Sometimes the athletes get excited."

An estimated crowd of 240,900 saw the 11 days of Olympic activity with an estimated income of $2,975,000. The games cost about 20 million dollars to stage.

Immediately on their conclusion it was announced the State of California was taking steps to continue its operation for the public.

Ridgeley Beats LaVale Pinmen

Ridgeley won two out of three games from LaSalle High School yesterday on the Club Recreation alleys to knot the Explorers for second place in the second half championship race of the Bi-State Interscholastic Duckpin League.

The victors spilled 624, 734 and 686 pins in three games for a total of 2,044. LaSalle put together games of 392, 710 and 816 for 2,118 pins in the three games, winning only the third match.

Butch Kincaid had games of 116, 138, 148 for a 408 set for Ridgeley while teammate Randy Powell rolled high game of 149 for the winners. Stevens topped 114, 177 and 162 pins for a 453 set for LaSalle. Skip Merritt had high game of 229 for the losers.

Daryl Meese of Ridgeley was awarded the trophy for rolling the high game of 253 in the National Christmas Tournament sponsored by the American Junior Bowling Congress. Meese previously received the doubles and singles trophies in the tourney.

Next week LaSalle's pinmen will clash with league-leading Allegany. The standings:

Gov. Underwood Outlines State Budget Problem

Addresses Students At Government Day

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)—Gov. Cecil H. Underwood made it plain Monday that the State Board of Public Works and not the governor alone is responsible for the budget submitted annually to the Legislature.

Underwood was one of four members of a panel in connection with Know Your State Government Day activities in the House of Delegates Chamber. Some 400 state high school juniors attended the day-long session.

Answering a question put to him by Patricia Lowther of Cowen, Webster County, Underwood said the governor's lack of authority in the budget making process was one of the executive's problems.

"The governor holds much power but in some respects he has unbelievably limited authority," Underwood said. "He holds the responsibility for the budget in the mind of the public and yet he doesn't actually control it."

Underwood said that most of the money spent by the state is released by department heads not under control of the governor and that the budgets submitted by the various agencies are approved by the seven-member board and not just by the governor.

The governor said his administration "has made great progress" in its efforts to bring new industry into the state to reduce unemployment. However, he said, the state's transportation, communication and educational facilities need to be improved "before we can expect any significant industrial expansion."

"No state is richer in natural resources," Underwood said, "and if we can work through this period of stress the future of West Virginia holds much promise."

Others on the panel titled "The Government of the 35th Star" were House Speaker Harry R. Pauley, State Supreme Court President Chauncey Browning and Sen. J. Horner Davis (D-Kanawha). Davis replaced Senate President Ralph J. Bean who was unable to make it because of inclement weather.

Following the discussion, the group attended a luncheon where Underwood was principal speaker. The afternoon program included a panel discussion comparing students from other lands.

UPRC, Towns, Paper Mill Get Honor Awards

Treatment Plant Project Praised

Cooperative efforts of the Upper Potomac River Commission, the Tri-Towns of Westernport, Luke and Piedmont, and West Virginia Pulp and Paper's Luke mill to clean up the Potomac River were recognized in Washington Saturday during a half-hour television program, "Our Beautiful Potomac," telecast by WRC-TV.

A highlight of the program was the presentation of five certificates from the Citizens' Council for a Clean Potomac to John A. Luke, general manager of the paper company's Fine Papers Division.

Luke accepted the certificates, representing the Council's annual award for stream pollution abatement activities, on behalf of the UPRC, the Tri-Towns and the paper company.

Cooperative Undertaking

The presentations were made by Lowell Mason, former member of the Federal Trade Commission and legislative chairman of the Citizens' Council.

Mason, who is an uncle of Robert W. Huck, LaVale, pointed to the cooperative undertaking of the UPRC, the towns and the company in building a $4 million plant to treat industrial wastes from the mill and domestic sewage from the towns. The plant was built and is being operated by the UPRC; the company is paying most of the bill.

In accepting the awards, Mr. Luke said the towns and the UPRC deserve much credit for their part in the project of building the waste treatment plant. It now has been in shakedown operation for a little more than a week.

Efforts Praised

Secretary Arthur S. Flemming of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, was a guest on the program, and during his remarks congratulated the towns, the company and its associates for their efforts in abating pollution of the Potomac.

Carleton D. Smith, vice president of the National Broadcasting Company and general manager of WRC-TV, noted that the program, titled "Success at Luke," was the fifth anniversary of "Our Beautiful Potomac."

Stuart Finley, producer of the program, narrated a color film which showed contrasting conditions of the river before and after start-up of the treatment plant at Westernport and a primary clarifier at the paper mill.

The film also showed interior and exterior shots of the paper mill and a view of a dried sludge disposal area in an abandoned strip mine high above Westernport.

Gov. Underwood Outlines State Budget Problem

Addresses Students At Government Day

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)—Gov. Cecil H. Underwood made it plain Monday that the State Board of Public Works and not the governor alone is responsible for the budget submitted annually to the Legislature.

Underwood was one of four members of a panel in connection with Know Your State Government Day activities in the House of Delegates Chamber. Some 400 state high school juniors attended the day-long session.

Answering a question put to him by Patricia Lowther of Cowen Webster County, Underwood said the governor's lack of authority in the budget making process was one of the executive's problems.

"The governor holds much power but in some respects he has unbelievably limited authority," Underwood said. "He holds the responsibility for the budget in the mind of the public and yet he doesn't actually control it."

Underwood said that most of the money spent by the state is released by department heads not under control of the governor and that the budgets submitted by the various agencies are approved by the seven-member board and not just by the governor.

The governor said his administration "has made great progress" in its efforts to bring new industry into the state to reduce unemployment. However, he said, the state's transportation, communication and educational facilities need to be improved "before we can expect any significant industrial expansion."

"No state is richer in natural resources," Underwood said, "and if we can work through this period of stress the future of West Virginia holds much promise."

Others on the panel titled "The Government of the 35th Star" were House Speaker Harry R. Pauley, State Supreme Court President Chauncey Browning and Sen. J. Horner Davis (D-Kanawha). Davis replaced Senate President Ralph J. Bean who was unable to make it because of inclement weather.

Following the discussion, the group attended a luncheon where Underwood was principal speaker. The afternoon program included a panel discussion comparing students from other lands.

UPRC, Towns, Paper Mill Get Honor Awards

Treatment Plant Project Praised

Cooperative efforts of the Upper Potomac River Commission, the Tri-Towns of Westernport, Luke and Piedmont, and West Virginia Pulp and Paper's Luke mill to clean up the Potomac River were recognized in Washington Saturday during a half-hour television program, "Our Beautiful Potomac," telecast by WRC-TV.

A highlight of the program was the presentation of five certificates from the Citizens' Council for a Clean Potomac to John A. Luke, general manager of the paper company's Fine Papers Division.

Luke accepted the certificates, representing the Council's annual award for stream pollution abatement activities, on behalf of the UPRC, the Tri-Towns and the paper company.

Cooperative Undertaking

The presentations were made by Lowell Mason, former member of the Federal Trade Commission and legislative chairman of the Citizens' Council.

Mason, who is an uncle of Robert W. Huck, LaVale, pointed to the cooperative undertaking of the UPRC, the towns and the company in building a $4 million plant to treat industrial wastes from the mill and domestic sewage from the towns. The plant was built and is being operated by the UPRC; the company is paying most of the bill.

In accepting the awards, Mr. Luke said the towns and the UPRC deserve much credit for their part in the project of building the waste treatment plant. It now has been in shakedown operation for a little more than a week.

Efforts Praised

Secretary Arthur S. Flemming of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, was a guest on the program, and during his remarks congratulated the towns, the company and its associates for their efforts in abating pollution of the Potomac.

Carleton D. Smith, vice president of the National Broadcasting Company and general manager of WRC-TV, noted that the program, titled "Success at Luke," was the fifth anniversary of "Our Beautiful Potomac."

Stuart Finley, producer of the program, narrated a color film which showed contrasting conditions of the river before and after start-up of the treatment plant at Westernport and a primary clarifier at the paper mill.

The film also showed interior and exterior shots of the paper mill and a view of a dried sludge disposal area in an abandoned strip mine high above Westernport.

Confirmation Of W.Va. Judge Is Indicated

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate Judiciary Committee Monday approved the nomination of Charles F. Paul Jr., Wheeling, W. Va., to be U. S. District Judge for Northern West Virginia.

The full Senate's approval now is considered only a formality.

Paul, 57, would succeed Judge Herbert S. Boreman, Parkersburg, W. Va., who was recently elevated to the bench of the Fourth Circuit Court of Appeals. A Republican, Paul has been a practicing attorney since 1926.

West Virginia's two Democratic Senators, Jennings Randolph and Robert C. Byrd, along with Rep. Arch A. Moore (R-W. Va.) supported Paul's nomination.

President Eisenhower first submitted Paul's nomination last August but it was not acted on by the 1959 Senate. His name was re-submitted in January when the 1960 session convened.

There was no opposition to Paul's nomination during a Senate Judiciary Committee hearing last Thursday.

Skeen Proposes Change In W.Va. Adoption Law

Candidate Cites Tucker Co. Case

RIPLEY, W. Va. (UPI) — One of five candidates for the West Virginia gubernatorial nomination has pledged his support to efforts to change the state's adoption laws.

State Treasurer Orel J. Skeen said Monday that if he was elected, this would be one of his proposals to the Legislature.

He pointed out the recent case involving a Parsons, Tucker County, couple as an example of the state's antiquated adoption machinery.

Skeen referred to Forrest and Edith Isner who sought to adopt Rosemary Johnston. They had custody of the child under a foster parents agreement since she was a week old.

This agreement forbids adoption of such children by the foster parents. And the couple was turned down in an appeal to Gov. Cecil H. Underwood to waive restrictions imposed by the State Department of Public Assistance.

Skeen said Underwood had "no other alternative" than to abide by present laws in making his decision in the case.

Opposing Skeen in the May 10 primary election are State Atty. Gen. W. W. Barron, State Chairman Hulet C. Smith, State Senate President Ralph Bean (D-Hardy) and House Speaker Harry R. Pauley (D-McDowell).

Tawes' Budget Is Enacted By Assembly

Illegitimacy Curb Is Sent To House

By GEORGE BOWEN

ANNAPOLIS (AP)—The Maryland Legislature Monday finished the main job of its 30-day session, approval of the governor's budget, and approached a showdown on the only remaining political scrap over reapportionment.

The House agreed without dissent to restoration of $11,040 the Senate made in its cuts and the budget became law without further action.

It totals $477,060,196 which means the Legislature cut it by less than $60,000 from the recommendations made by Gov. Tawes.

The virtually untouched budget and lack of legislative argument over it emphasized the rule of a Democratic governor and 142 out of 152 members of his party in the Legislature.

The Senate, at its afternoon session, approved 23-3 a bill designed to curb the illegitimacy rate and its impact on welfare funds in Maryland.

Is Toned Down

As sent to the House, the bill carried the following penalties for any woman who has more than two illegitimate children: A fine of up to $1,000 and up to three years in prison, denial of welfare payments for any of her children and possible loss of custody of the children.

Circuit Courts would be empowered to determine whether such a mother should retain custody or whether the children should be placed in a foster home.

The bill was toned down from the form in which its sponsor, Sen. John L. Sanford Jr. (D-Worcester), had introduced it. He had proposed a mandatory sterilization operation, mandatory loss of her children and mandatory revocation of all welfare funds for her family.

Voting against the bill as it cleared the Senate with no debate were Sens. Harry R. Hughes (D-Caroline), Joseph V. Mach (D-Balto 2nd) and Harry T. Phoebus (R-Somerset). Sens. J. Alvin Jones (D-Balto 4th) and William S. James (D-Harford) abstained from voting.

Time Is Short

The tugging over reapportionment of the Legislature became one of waiting.

Foes of a bill calling for a constitutional convention finally allowed it to advance to final reading stage Monday afternoon. One of their parliamentary weapons had been removed during the last five days of the session.

However, barring some further parliamentary shenanigans, the bill cannot be passed by the House until Tuesday. Then it has to buck its way through the Senate with time running out fast since legislative leaders hope to quit for the year Wednesday.

The state's first authority to regulate sources of atomic radiation was sent along by the House at its half hour afternoon session. The Senate bill it approved will authorize the State Board of Health to control the radiation source.

Sunny, Cold Is Forecast For March 1

Golden Gives Weather Data

The stars were shining and the air was crisp last night in Garrett County where Ol' Man Winter dumped about eight inches of fresh snow yesterday and Sunday.

Highways were snow-covered but passable, according to a spokesman for the State Roads Commission, who said that crews were on the alert in the event the weather became worse.

Traffic Maintained

The spokesman said the highways were "not too bad" and two-way traffic was being maintained.

Considerable sunshine and cold weather with a high temperature in the 30s is forecast for today, the day when lion-like weather or lamb-like weather can determine the balance of the month of March.

If today comes in like a lion it will go out like a lamb and vice versa, according to weather tradition.

About three inches of new snow fell in Garrett County yesterday although skies cleared off last night and the stars were shining. The temperature dipped to the crisp 18 degrees above zero by 5 p.m. and had dropped somewhat last night.

Ralph Weber, official weather observer, said the high temperature for the way was 26 degrees and there was at least 15 inches of snow on the ground in Garrett County.

In Cumberland last night the mercury stood at about 21 to 22 degrees at Constitution Park. Robert Golden, weather observer, said.

High Of 31
The high for the day was 31 degrees, according to Mr. Golden, who said 11.9 inches of snow fell in Cumberland during February this year.

The normal mean average temperature for the second month of the year is 33.2 degrees, he said. This past month the average was 32.9 degrees or .03 degrees under the normal temperature.

The average precipitation is 2.34 inches and last month the total was 3.04 inches or .70 inches over the average.

The West Virginia weather situation indicated last night that the most serious driving hazards were pinpointed in Grant, Mineral and Morgan counties but roads in Webster County also were on the Road Commission's list of trouble spots.

Jesse James Valentine, 32-year-old former local resident, will be given a preliminary hearing this afternoon in Trial Magistrate Court on a charge of the burglary of $205 from McCoolle Elementary School last October 28.

Valentine was arrested last month in Hudson, Ohio, and was returned here February 23 on a warrant obtained by Sgt. William F. Baker and Tfc. Milton G. Hart of the State Police.

Valentine also was implicated in a number of county safe jobs by three Bowman's Addition area residents, who pleaded guilty Friday to a series of burglaries.

Olin Calvin Miller, 33, James Edward Crowe, 24, and James Allen Hutzell, 16, entered pleas of guilty to various charges brought against them by the State's Attorney's office.

Chief Judge Morgan C. Harris withheld sentences in the case pending a report on the background of the two men and the boy from James Lewis, probation officer.

Ball Point Pens Used In Vandalism

Ball point pens were involved in vandalism and defacing of property complaints being investigated by the Cumberland Police Department.

The first was reported by Thomas A. Rennie, 311 Mountain View Drive, who told Detective Thomas J. See light blue marks were placed on the car parked in front of his home. Det. See said the damage was apparently caused by a ball point pen which cut into the paint.

A similar pen was apparently used to deface the door of the office of the Credit Bureau in the Commercial Bank Building over the weekend.

Foundations For Housing Project Rise

This rather bleak view shows the foundations rising for Fort Cumberland Homes, this city's third low-rent public housing project located between Oldtown Road and Thomas Street. The 80-dwelling units, plus an administration building at Jane Frazier Village, are being built by the George Construction Company under a $975,375 contract. Delivery of framing lumber to the site was under way yesterday. The construction firm began clearing and excavation work in mid November and ground was formally broken on January 6. Occupants of the homes, as the picture shows, will have a splendid view of the spires of the older sections of the city, and of the Narrows, Gateway to the West during the early history of this city.

Foley Files For Re-Election To Congress

Rep. John R. Foley filed yesterday for re-election to Congress from the Sixth Maryland District. He drove to the State House immediately after completing testimony against the President's proposed budget cut of $54,000,000 in the Federally Impacted School Aid Program, before the House Appropriation sub-committee.

Mr. Foley's initial announcement was made after a luncheon arranged for county commissioners from Allegany, Garrett, Washington and Frederick counties.

While in Annapolis, the Sixth District Congressman met informally with Gov. J. Millard Tawes and state legislators from the five Western Maryland counties comprising the Sixth Congressional District.

Rep. Foley, whose home is in Kensington, was elected to the House of Representatives in 1958. Upon filing his candidacy for re-election he made the following statement:

"I deeply appreciate the trust which the people of Allegany, Garrett, Frederick, Washington and Montgomery counties have placed in me in electing me to serve in the 86th Congress. I have endeavored to perform the duties of this privileged office to the end that all my constituents have been served to the very best of my ability. I have worked to represent all of the people of the Sixth Maryland District. I am grateful for the continued interest and support of Marylanders in the Sixth District."

Miss Ruth C. McColly, supervisor of home economics education of Allegany County public schools, said yesterday.

Methods of mending children's clothing and household linens in a simple and interesting way will be included in the class, according to Miss McColly who said class members with personal problems will be given help.

The class will meet two hours each Tuesday afternoon for six weeks. It is a service to the community through the Adult Education program of the Allegany County Board of Education.

Further information may be obtained by calling Miss McColly at PA 2-6695.

Former Local Couple's Son Battles For His Young Life

The infant son of a former local couple now living in Ohio has been waging a battle for his life since the day he was born on December 2, 1959.

Marvin T. McBride, during his short span of life, has battled pneumonia twice and has been hospitalized most of the time, according to relatives who said the boy has an enlarged heart. Richard and Arlene (Liller) McBride, the parents, have been notified by an attending physician that their boy will require an operation which is not advisable until the boy reaches four years of age.

Meanwhile the hospital and medical bills for the $50-a-week workman are piling up. Finances are the big problem of the young couple who reportedly have received some assistance from the Heart Fund in Youngstown, Ohio, to help defray the doctor's bill. And there is an unpaid hospital bill of $1,088 facing the couple, a friend of the family said last night.

The young couple, who formerly resided in Ellerslie, moved to Youngstown last October where the 25-year-old husband obtained a job which pays $50 a week. Their new-born son remained in a Youngstown hospital for some time and later was transferred to a Cleveland hospital for treatment. This past week the baby was taken home but was later admitted to the Youngstown hospital. He is reported "somewhat better."

The parents have been advised that the child must have absolute quiet and is to be handled only at feeding time and when it is being bathed.

The boy's grandmother, Mrs. Christine McBride, lives at 927 Frederick Street. She plans to go to Youngstown to see her son, daughter-in-law and grandson.

County Commissioners Hear About Highways

WASHINGTON (AP)—County commissioners from four Western Maryland counties were told Monday the government is as much interested in secondary as in new interstate highways.

Francis C. Turner, deputy commissioner and chief engineer of the Bureau of Public Roads, said the federal-aid secondary system is just as important as the highly publicized interstate roads.

The interstate system, he said, is a Johnny-come-lately which because of its cost is attracting attention and criticism.

Turner told commissioners from Frederick, Allegany, Garrett and Washington counties that unless the present ceiling of 41,000 miles of interstate highways is lifted, Maryland could hope for no additional mileage.

The commissioners attended a luncheon in the Capitol given by Rep. John R. Foley (D-Md.).

Bernard F. Hillenbrand, executive director of the National Assn. of County Officials, told the group the association is opposed to a proposal that the federal government move into the general welfare area.

The association, he said, is backing proposed government payments in lieu of taxes in those localities where government installations have cut down on taxable property.

Regarding highway programs, Hillenbrand said his organization is urging completion of a balanced highway program. It is opposed, he said, to any arrangement which would tend to freeze regular primary, secondary or urban highway appropriations or interrupt the federal highways program.

Bowling Green Fire Unit To Issue Stickers

Invalid Service Is Being Offered

The Bowling Green Volunteer Fire Department will mark homes where invalids live, according to Fire Chief Allan Definbaugh.

He said a large I shaped sticker, which is visible at night when a light shines upon it, will be distributed to all homes which request the service.

The fire department will keep a complete file of all invalids and a large map located on the wall of the fire station will be marked so that all firemen can become familiar with the location of the homes and give prompt action when an alarm is turned in for any of the homes.

Bowling Green is the third volunteer fire department in the county to supply such a service. Potomac Fire Company No. 2, Westernport, began the program about two years ago and LaVale began distributing the stickers last October.

A similar program has been started by the Cumberland Fire Department, according to Chief Definbaugh.

Those who desire the identification stickers may contact Chief Definbaugh by phoning PA 2-4338.

City Police arrested the four persons after they were found parked in a car about 3:30 a. m. Saturday.

In another hearing yesterday in Juvenile Court, Magistrate Fatkin found a 14-year-old Mt. Savage area girl guilty of being a delinquent minor and ordered her committed to the House of Good Shepherd near Baltimore.

SRC Will Get Green Light On Road Plan

Meetings Set On Secondary Routes

ANNAPOLIS (AP)—Maryland's planned 12-year program of building roads will start on a radical detour during the last five years beginning Tuesday.

Gov. Tawes will sign a bill giving the State Roads Commission the green light to forget the limitations imposed on what it could build and when.

The 1953 Legislature which adopted the ambitious program spelled out how fast the commission could proceed. The main restriction was that the commission had to build 90 per cent of its outlined roads in a four-year period before progressing to roads in the next period.

Conferees Set

The Roads Commission has decided that there won't be enough money to carry out the entire program without increasing taxes. Without more money, the commission said that if the 12-year program were followed Maryland would wind up in 1965 with "crazy quilt network of partially completed arterial highways and partially completed secondary roads."

Instead it proposed that 330 million dollars of the prospective money be spent on completing 400 miles of major highways and spending the 40 million left over on secondary roads.

The commission will decide which secondary roads will be built after consulting with county officials and county legislators.

Will Sign Bill

The governor also will sign Tuesday a bill paving the way for the federal government to pay 90 per cent of the cost of a new toll bridge across the Potomac River near Williamsport.

The bill will repeal an agreement between Maryland and West Virginia to pay for half the cost of toll bridges across the river. The agreement was a technical block to federal participation.

Gov. Tawes' signature also sent to Congress a request to support appropriation of funds for completion of any Army survey of the Potomac River.

Health Clinics Scheduled In New Quarters

The Allegany County Health Department will begin its March clinic schedule here today in its new headquarters at 111 Union Street.

Today's clinic schedule includes a child health clinic for Negro children, beginning at 9 a. m. at 111 Union Street. Also scheduled in the county building is a mental health clinic for children today from 10 a. m. to noon. A child health clinic is scheduled in the Westernport Health Center at 9 a. m.

Tomorrow's clinics, all at 111 Union Street, include multi-purpose and maternity clinics at 9 a. m. and a mental health clinic for children at 10 a. m.

A child health clinic is scheduled Thursday at 9 a. m. in Northeast School. Friday's clinics, all beginning at 9 a. m., include a child health clinic in the Barton Legion Home and mental health and chest clinics at 111 Union Street.

Sunny, Cold Is Forecast For March 1

Golden Gives Weather Data

The stars were shining and the air was crisp last night in Garrett County where Ol' Man Winter dumped about eight inches of fresh snow yesterday and Sunday.

Highways were snow-covered but passable, according to a spokesman for the State Roads Commission, who said that crews were on the alert in the event the weather became worse.

Traffic Maintained

The spokesman said the highways were "not too bad" and two-way traffic was being maintained.

Considerable sunshine and cold weather with a high temperature in the 30s is forecast for today, the day when lion-like weather or lamb-like weather can determine the balance of the month of March.

If today comes in like a lion it will go out like a lamb and vice versa, according to weather tradition.

About three inches of new snow fell in Garrett County yesterday although skies cleared off last night and the stars were shining. The temperature dipped to a crisp 18 degrees above zero by 5 p.m. and had dropped somewhat later.

Ralph Weber, official weather observer, said the high temperature for the way was 26 degrees and there was at least 15 inches of snow on the ground in Garrett County.

In Cumberland last night the mercury stood at about 21 to 22 degrees at Constitution Park, Robert Golden, weather observer, said.

High Of 31

The high for the day was 31 degrees, according to Mr. Golden, who said 11.9 inches of snow fell in Cumberland during February this year.

The normal mean average temperature for the second month of the year is 33.2 degrees, he said. This past month the average was 32.9 degrees or .03 degrees under the normal temperature.

The average precipitation is 2.34 inches and last month the total was 3.04 inches or .70 inches over the average.

The West Virginia weather situation indicated last night that the most serious driving hazards were pinpointed in Grant, Mineral and Morgan counties but roads in Webster County also were on the Road Commission's list of trouble spots.

Valentine also was implicated in a number of county safe jobs by three Bowman's Addition area residents, who pleaded guilty Friday to a series of burglaries.

Olin Calvin Miller, 33, James Edward Crowe, 24, and James Allen Hutzell, 16, entered pleas of guilty to various charges brought against them by the State's Attorney's office.

Chief Judge Morgan C. Harris withheld sentences in the case pending a report on the background of the two men and the boy from James Lewis, probation officer.

The 80-dwelling units, plus an administration building at Jane Frazier Village, are being built by the George Construction Company under a $975,375 contract. Delivery of framing lumber to the site was under way yesterday. The construction firm began clearing and excavation work in mid November and ground was formally broken on January 6. Occupants of the homes, as the picture shows, will have a splendid view of the spires of the older sections of the city, and of the Narrows, Gateway to the West during the early history of this city.

Foley Files For Re-Election To Congress

Rep. John R. Foley filed yesterday for re-election to Congress from the Sixth Maryland District. He drove to the State House immediately after completing testimony against the President's proposed budget cut of $54,000,000 in the Federally Impacted School Aid Program, before the House Appropriation sub-committee.

Mr. Foley's initial announcement was made after a luncheon arranged for county commissioners from Allegany, Garrett, Washington and Frederick counties.

While in Annapolis, the Sixth District Congressman met informally with Gov. J. Millard Tawes and state legislators from the five Western Maryland counties comprising the Sixth Congressional District.

Former Local Couple's Son Battles For His Young Life

The infant son of a former local couple now living in Ohio has been waging a battle for his life since the day he was born on December 2, 1959.

Marvin T. McBride, during his short span of life, has battled pneumonia twice and has been hospitalized most of the time, according to relatives who said the boy has an enlarged heart. Richard and Arlene (Liller) McBride, the parents, have been notified by an attending physician that their boy will require an operation which is not advisable until the boy reaches four years of age.

Meanwhile the hospital and medical bills for the $50-a-week workman are piling up. Finances are the big problem of the young couple who reportedly have received some assistance from the Heart Fund in Youngstown, Ohio, to help defray the doctor's bill. And there is an unpaid hospital bill of $1,088 facing the couple, a friend of the family said last night.

County Commissioners Hear About Highways

WASHINGTON (AP) — County commissioners from four Western Maryland counties were told Monday the government is as much interested in secondary as in new interstate highways.

Francis C. Turner, deputy commissioner and chief engineer of the Bureau of Public Roads, said the federal-aid secondary system is just as important as the highly publicized interstate roads.

The interstate system, he said, is a Johnny-come-lately which because of its cost is attracting attention and criticism.

Turner told commissioners from Frederick, Allegany, Garrett and Washington counties that unless the present ceiling of 41,000 miles of interstate highways is lifted, Maryland could hope for no additional mileage.

The commissioners attended a luncheon in the Capitol building with Rep. John R. Foley (D-Md.).

Bernard F. Hillenbrand, executive director of the National Assn. of County Officials, told the group the association is opposed to a proposal that the federal government move into the general welfare area.

The association, he said, is backing proposed government payments in lieu of taxes in those localities where government installations have cut down on taxable property.

Regarding highway programs, Hillenbrand said his organization is urging completion of a balanced highway program. It is opposed, he said, to any arrangement which would tend to freeze regular primary, secondary or urban highway appropriations or interrupt the federal highways program.

Bowling Green Fire Unit To Issue Stickers

Invalid Service Is Being Offered

The Bowling Green Volunteer Fire Department will mark homes where invalids live, according to Fire Chief Allan Deffinbaugh.

He said a large I shaped sticker, which is visible at night when a light shines upon it, will be distributed to all homes which request the service.

The fire department will keep a complete file of all invalids and a large map located on the wall of the fire station will be marked so that all firemen can become familiar with the location of the homes and give prompt action when an alarm is turned in for any of the homes.

Bowling Green is the third volunteer fire department in the county to supply such a service. Potomac Fire Company No. 2, Westernport, began the program about two years ago and LaVale began distributing the stickers last October.

A similar program has been started by the Cumberland Fire Department, according to Chief Deffinbaugh.

SRC Will Get Green Light On Road Plan

Meetings Set On Secondary Routes

ANNAPOLIS (AP)—Maryland's planned 12-year program of building roads will start on a radical detour during the last five years beginning Tuesday.

Gov. Tawes will sign a bill giving the State Roads Commission the green light to forget the limitations imposed on what it could build and when.

The 1953 Legislature which adopted the ambitious program spelled out how fast the commission could proceed. The main restriction was that the commission had to build 90 per cent of its outlined roads in a four-year period before progressing to roads in the next period.

Conferences Set

The Roads Commission has decided that there won't be enough money to carry out the entire program without increasing taxes. Without more money, the commission said that if the 12-year program were followed Maryland would wind up in 1965 with "crazy quilt network of partially completed arterial highways and partially completed secondary roads."

Instead it proposed that 330 million dollars of the prospective money be spent on completing 400 miles of major highways and spending the 40 million left over on secondary roads.

The commission will decide which secondary roads will be built after consulting with county officials and county legislators.

Will Sign Bill

The governor also will sign Tuesday a bill paving the way for the federal government to pay 90 per cent of the cost of a new toll bridge across the Potomac River near Williamsport.

The bill will repeal an agreement between Maryland and West Virginia to pay for half the cost of toll bridges across the river. The agreement was a technical block to federal participation.

Gov. Tawes' signature also sent to Congress a request it support appropriation of funds for completion of any Army survey of the Potomac River.
